The Provincial Health Officer (PHO) has issued Preventive Measures Orders under the Public Health Act which require individuals who work in health care in BC to be vaccinated against COVID-19. These orders are intended to reduce COVID-19 case rates, outbreaks, hospitalizations, critical care admissions, and deaths, protect people who cannot be vaccinated, and protect our healthcare system. |

The PHO order states that “A request for reconsideration from a person seeking an exemption from the requirement to be vaccinated or to provide proof of vaccination must be made on the basis that the health of the person would be seriously jeopardized if the person were to comply with Order, and must follow the guidelines posted on the Provincial Health Officer’s website

(<https://www2.gov.bc.ca/gov/content/health/about-bc-s-health-care-system/office-of-the-provincial-healthofficer/current-health-topics/covid-19-novel-coronavirus>) .”

To be considered for an exemption you will likely have had a dose of vaccine and experienced a serious adverse event or have a pre-existing medical condition the warrants being exempted for a period of time. It is important to note that being exempted from a PHO order requirement is not equivalent to a permanent deferral to being vaccinated. Some people for whom a vaccination deferral has been recommended may get a dose at a later date. If you have been granted an exemption to PHO requirements, and you do get vaccinated at a later date, you should notify the PHO at the contact information below to update your exemption status. A decision to get vaccinated remains a decision for the individual in consultation with their health care provider.
